The Ark Band

The Ark Band return with a reggae inspired covers album

Feeling the need to reach out to a mainstream audience, Terry Bobb, drummer and leader of the Ark Band, decided to do a little research. He found that the top playing and selling reggae songs of all time, were covers or mainstream hits done with a reggae beat and style. Seeing the reaction of a live audience when the band performed “Electric Avenue” – the old Eddie Grant hit, sealed the deal for Terry.

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED, the band decided to cover a variety of classic, mainstream rock hits with a fresh sounding interpretation, bringing reggae to classics such as the Eagles’ “Hotel California”, The Temptations “The Way You Do the Things You Do”, “The Land Down Under”, and “Electric Avenue” --recognizable songs that even mainstream radio programmers have to give a listen to.

The group performs regularly around the Midwest, but has been all over the country and has also performed in Jamaica. Their previous release on Little Fish, “Love Is What We Need”, is still getting airplay around the world. The title track along with two other songs from that cd, also appear on the Buckeye Riddims compilation cd put out recently by Little Fish Records.
